

SAFETY AND JUSTICE CHALLENGE

Laurie Garduque

Director, Justice Reform, MacArthur Foundation

May 8, 2017

Supported by the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation

SAFETY+JUSTICE CHALLENGE

An initiative to reduce over-incarceration by changing the way America thinks about and uses jails

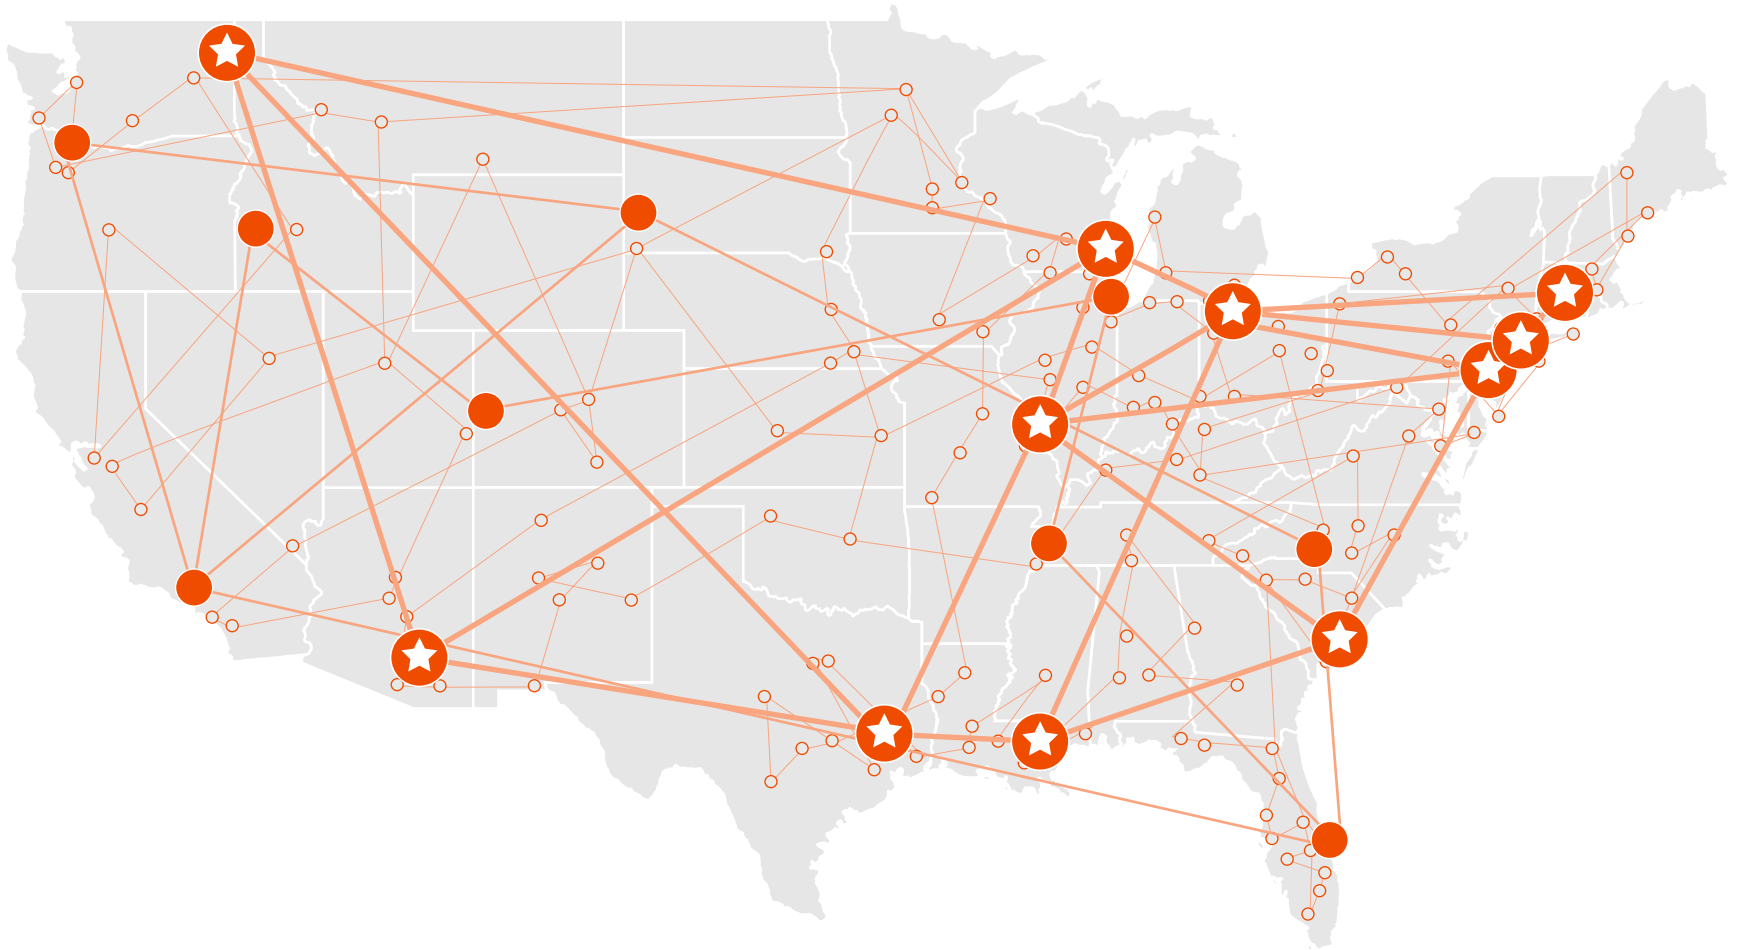

The Core and Partner Sites

The Innovation Fund Sites

The Challenge Network

The Challenge Network

Communications

The Washington Post

As a sheriff, I know that jail is not always the answer

(Nov 2016)

FASTCOMPANY

Mass Incarceration Is The Enemy Of Economic Opportunity

(Jan 2017)

The Fight for Criminal Justice Reform is Moving to the States

(Feb 2017)

EBONY

Poll: Majority of Americans Believe Alternative to jail Should Exist

(Mar 2017)

THE SPOKESMAN-REVIEW

Spokane judges have a new tool to decide whether the right people are in jail

(Jan 2017)

The Philadelphia Inquirer

In the race for DA in Philly, reform is all the buzz

(Mar 2017)

Arizona Daily Star

"We continue to build on our past successes in addressing behavioral-health issues."

(Apr 2017)

The Post and Courier

Jail reform a welcome effort

(Apr 2017)

Initiative Principles

- Safety and Justice
- Local focus, local solutions
- Fairness to individuals and communities
- Community engagement

Community Engagement

Why does it matter?

Trust

Problem-solving

Accountability

Pillars of Community Engagement

1. Authenticity
2. Accessibility and Transparency
3. Respect for Diversity
4. Commitment to Ongoing Engagement

A Network of Reformers

“Unfair, ineffective and inefficient justice systems do not increase public safety or the well-being of individuals and their communities. They are inconsistent with American ideals.”

Julia Stasch, President, MacArthur Foundation